HE WORLD OF POLITICS.

VERSION OF THE CLEVELAND STORY

The Press and People Say of Butler's Candidacy—Kelly and Tammany Prepared to Support Him—News and Gossip

Maine, Aug 6.—When Mr Blaine ascended the steps of the stand to address the vast he was greeted with shouts, cheers and cries of our next president. He said: Gentlemen army of Maine—I thank you for this and cordial greeting. The occasion has been great pleasure to me in the renewal of old and recalling old scenes of civil life your splendid deeds of war my mind back to the winter of 1861 to the excitement and at the same time seriousness and of that ominous and critical era. I vividly every incident as we stood on the eve of struggle. When at last the war cloud had President Lincoln issued his proclamation Maine was asked for one regiment Washburne summoned an extra session of and I had the honor at the time to be the house of representatives. Patriotism confidence strong, and we younger members of the legislature (I was but 31 years old myself) do something very bold, something ventured to hope would be rather appalling confederate government.

MAINE'S PART IN THE WAR.

of responding with one regiment which had asked, we authorized the governor ten regiments to the national government entirely unused to state debt we empowered the governor to borrow $1,000,000 for the state for immediate use in equipment. We all felt that we were bragging these big figures. We felt sure our ten would never be used, for the contingents implied a larger force than Napoleon both controlled on the field of Waterloo. General Fremming you better than I know our ten regiments were swept into the before the expiration of half a year by sending thirty-two regiments of two regiments of cavalry and nine batteries of artillery. This with recruits needed to ranks full in the terrible contest absorbed more than 70,000 of the men of Maine—a as large in proportion to the arms population as Frederick the Great levied provinces of Prussia in the hardest period of years war.

A TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

gentlemen, are an honored and important the survivors of that great host. I join with commemoration services for the unreturning that great host who died for their country. No victory ever assured so much, no victory ever prevented so much. The struggle is over and our triumph is celebrated with a sense of having conquered the with that better sense of having retained and brought them back to their own the protection of their own flag. Be north and south, east and west will protection under its sheltering folds we together in unity for we are brethren.

speech closed amid a tumult of applause ten minutes.

BLAINE'S MOVEMENTS

Me., Aug 8.—Blaine arrived at the muster this afternoon and was received by Adjutant General Sprague and conducted tent, where he was received by the the adjutant general. After introductions staff officers and a few minutes chat driven away. Mr Blaine returned to this afternoon.

THE CLEVELAND CHARGES

Make an Explanation that Satisfies Beecher and Schurz

EXPLANATION BY CLEVELAND'S FRIENDS

Aug 7.—[Special.]—General Horatio C. interviewed says: I felt confident the the governor were false because the character and life of the man repudiated the unworthy action attributed to him. highest opinion of him was fully justified my investigation. I learned enough to that he had been wrongfully accused and did quite a little bit of detective work on my own account. The fact seems to years ago when the governor was a he met this woman with whom became connected and became intimate. She was a widow and not a good by any means. Cleveland, learning this, inquiries and discovered that two of were intimate with her at the same time. When a child was born Cleveland, in order two friends who were both married, assumed the responsibility of it. He took care child and mother like a man and did every in his power for them until the woman became a confirmed victim to alcohol and made it impossible by her conduct for him to have anything to do with her. He never separated the mother and child did he do anything to injure the woman throughout the whole affair the victim of He accepted responsibilities that in a thousand would have shouldered honorably in the matter.

OTHER TESTIMONY

to King, this explanation as now put Beecher and Schurz. An ex-Buffalo Alderman testimony. Three of her fair ad she was an attractive woman, were married man who in reality was father of the an interesting daughter whom he idol he was in constant dread lest his offense his wife and children, and Cleveland only unmarried man, relieved him of his by shouldering all responsibility and the child is his perfect image and looks. Cleveland acted a heroic sorry this thing came before the public the democratic party to show the private republican candidate and you can take there is a scandal in the life of the Knight" that I would not like published enemy.

BEECHER SAYS THE CHARGES ARE FALSE

Aug 8.—[Special.]—Beecher being now declares that he is satisfied the against Cleveland are false and he will support him. Per contra, a man who was born at residence in Oneida county and who was by Cleveland's father informed your yesterday that the half of the Cleveland not yet been told. This man knew and through and through and relates and devilries of the young governor democrat himself he says the antecedents are unsavory in a hundred ways and from stock that presidents ought not has the following on Beecher's attitude reporter called on him yesterday evening at Peekskill. Beecher was rambling among shrubbery. He said that from private public investigations he had received that cleared away his doubts and had made up his mind to support unless something more damaging than published is produced. He is satisfied has committed an error about thirteen but at the time he acted a generous and part and has for that won his ad Beecher said he thought the governor's of election are growing brighter every he should in a short time make public his the question.

THE SUN ON THE CHARGES

Aug 8.—[Special.]—The Sun on the scandal says: The editor of the Buffalo (democratic) takes direct issue with the scandalous story and the manner of its He admits that substantially it is at least, founded on fact, that the replying by the person most interested is sufficient that both Blaine and Cleveland have for, and however objectionable they each is entitled to justice as much as the justice may injure him or help him." says elsewhere. Beecher condoned offense because the error was committed years ago. It is a curious and interesting thirteen years ago Beecher wrote his begging Tilton's pardon, which was with F. D. Moulton.

BUTLER'S CANDIDACY

Will Support him—What the Papers Have to Say

COMMENT ON BUTLER'S LETTER

Aug 7.—[Special.]—The Sun comments fashion on Butler's letter. General he will stand by the nominations of backers and the anti-monopolists as his introduction to the people at large and ad to the conduct of as lively, picturesque a canvass as has ever been seen in He writes that he is only waiting until seen Cleveland's letter of acceptance to own sentiments. This he will do with a animation and piquancy that will interest for he is a most vigorous statesman, full ideas, a master hand in contemporary a desire in issues of the most vital de No empty sentimentalisms but logic of practical facts that concern the people scandals to obliterate, explain and avow will be the liveliest candidate in the field to attend to but the business of his uninterrupted by any distraction such as and Blaine have. Politics with Butler in the field will be more entertaining

Tribune says, but evidently not on Butler's Tilden advise Governor Cleveland to hold letter of acceptance? Is the object of this delay, just announced, intended to keep as long as possible, and does it now all that the democrats are terribly anxious workingmen's vote?

says: "Whether he runs or not we don't will carry the torch in the democratic next October.

Herald says: "General Butler has decided to a little presidential circus on his own ac He announces that he will soon be ready to road, and is busy getting up his posters shortly be ready to be put out, and mean what showmen call a 'dodger.'" simply asks what states can Butler editorial ends: "For a great many years has been conspicuous in the public affairs country. He has been a republican and a but he has generally pursued his own both parties. He has many enemies and His enemies are mostly to be found rich, the highly educated and the aristocracy; his friends are among the masses of the this canvass the presence of Butler will produce a disturbance and this disturbance judgment likely to prove wholesome and Times editorial on Butler says: "Before he gives his reasons he wants the benefit of Cleveland's letter of acceptance. This is characteristic. He received his nominations long before Cleveland became a candidate, and if he has any honorable reason for accepting them he ought to be able to give them without reference to what that candidate may say. His present announcement is in effect an avowal that his object is to oppose Cleveland and do what he can for his defeat. He can have no other purpose.

KALLOCH TALKS FOR BUTLER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 8.—[Special.]—Ex-Mayor Kalloch being asked if this state would be organized in the interest of General Butler, said: The state is organized in a measure already, but it will be more thoroughly when the campaign opens. I shall address the workingmen of this city in Union hall September 2 and give reasons why they should support Butler. You will see an immense rally of people on that occasion. Men who don't join the clubs nor wear uniforms will be there. The independent element is the strongest. It is that element that will hear me. I shall show them why they can not support Cleveland. It may appear as if the workingmen are going to support Cleveland, but it is only appearance. The politicians are active, but the people have not yet shown their hand. When they do you will see something to surprise you.

Reporter—Don't you think Butler has waited too long before declaring himself?

Kalloch—No. Butler knows what he is about. September is soon enough to open the campaign for anybody but our people. They are always in a hurry. We have got to be in an excitement. But it won't hurt us any to keep cool a few weeks longer. It will be hot enough between now and November.

Reporter—Do you think there is any chance for Butler to be elected?

Kalloch—I think he will get a much larger vote than anybody dreams of, and he will endeavor to carry states enough to throw the election into the house of representatives.

Reporter—If Butler does not expect to be elected, what is his object in running?

Kalloch—To keep together, to consolidate and enthuse the party that will make him president next time. He intends to beat the democratic party this time, and build up on its ruins a party of the people. Butler is a true democrat. He believes that the Chicago convention gave the people away.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Aug 7.—[Special.]—General Butler's announcement that he intends to stand by the greenback and anti-monopoly nominations caused very little comment here, neither party seeming to think that his candidacy would affect them one way or the other. Republicans say if he gets any of the Irish vote it will be from the democratic party, while the democrats assert that the only Irish vote he will get will be the dynamiters who would have voted for Blaine had Butler not run. Secretary McPherson said to-day: Butler is doing with the democrats just as he did with us when he was a republican. He is a regular bull in a china shop. He has done as everybody expected when he was so ignominiously snubbed at Chicago. He will run now as a labor democrat. They have now two candidates in the field. Oh, they are beaten, he added. They might as well recognize it now. Butler will carry a large democratic vote. He will take some democratic votes which would have gone to Blaine, but these are few, and we are very willing to lose them in view of the vast numbers he will get that would not have voted for Blaine.

KELLY'S OPINION OF BUTLER

NEW YORK, Aug 6.—[Special.]—The World prints interviews with prominent politicians as to the effect of Butler's candidacy. They generally conclude that Butler will hurt Blaine, or at least not injure Cleveland. John Kelly, however, said: It is a new phase to canvass. I have known him for thirty years. He is very popular, especially with the working classes, and will poll a large vote. No better evidence of his popularity could be given than the way he was received by crowds of people in a drenching rain on Evacuation day. It surprised me, the way he was cheered along the line, and then, too, a reception was given in Chicago just before the convention. Butler has many elements of strength, and personally I have a very high opinion of him as a man.

TAMMANY WILL SUPPORT BUTLER

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—The Sun's Saratoga special says: There seems little doubt that Tammany will support Butler. Kelly says Butler will poll two or more votes than his strongest supporter at the present day prophesies. The feeling here among democrats and republicans is that Butler's avowal of his candidacy completely kills the chances that Cleveland may ever have had of carrying New York and makes certain his defeat.

MR. BUTLER OPPOSES CLEVELAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 8.—[Special.]—Senator John P. Jones of Nevada said to-day: Oh, Butler is working in the interest of Blaine. I am sure he is helping to defeat Cleveland. He knows that the democratic party is going into insolvency this fall without a living asset, and he is anxious to make its failure as complete as possible, so that he may get their stand and good will cheap and start in business himself.

OTHER DANA'S GUEST

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—It is stated that General Butler has been the guest of Charles A. Dana at Glen Cove for several days.

POLITICAL POINTS

Hendricks Says he will Not be Swindled Out of Office this Time—Republican Conference—Etc.

CONFERENCE OF REPUBLICANS

DEER PARK, Md., Aug 8.—Another conference was held here to-day between S. B. Elkins and several leading republicans and great bankers of West Virginia. The number present was not as large as at last week's conference. It is understood that only those who were to have part in the management of the canvass in West Virginia were in attendance. The closest secrecy was observed, none of the gentlemen registering at the hotel, all being entertained at Elkins' cottage and the meetings held within its doors. Elkins and ex-Senator Davis returned last night from the mines adjacent to the West Virginia Central, which Senator Don Cameron and several Pennsylvania republicans recently reached via White Sulphur. Some of those in conference with Elkins to-day arrived yesterday and awaited his coming. He has assumed personal charge of the canvass of Maxwell, the fusion candidate for governor. Funds, it is said, have been liberally promised by the republican national committee, and the campaign will be inaugurated at an early day by a meeting in Wheeling.

HENDRICKS INTERVIEWED

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—Hendricks, being interviewed, said: One thing I am quite positive of, and that is if the ticket is elected Cleveland and myself will be inaugurated. I do not believe that the fraud of 1876 can be repeated in American history. While New York is quite essential to democratic victory, I believe Ohio to be the great battle ground of the campaign. I regard Butler as a man of force and considerable popularity among a certain class of people, particularly the working men. He is not, however, a sufficiently formidable candidate to induce any one to wager his success. If he runs I believe he will receive, as nearly as I can judge, about an equal number of votes from both parties, so that after all there are but two real candidates, Blaine and Cleveland. He said further that he had no doubt that Kelly and his followers would support the ticket.

CLEVELAND ON THE WING

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug 8.—Governor Cleveland arrived here last evening. No public notice had been given of his movements, but during the afternoon a rumor that he was expected got afloat, and when the train pulled in at 8 P. M. a crowd of several thousand assembled at the depot. As the governor made his way to a carriage through the dense throng he was repeatedly cheered. Governor Cleveland remained here over night as the guest of Smith M. Weed, and this morning left by special train for Lion mountain and Chateaugay lake, halting on his way at Clinton prison. Saturday he will proceed to Prospect house at the head of upper Saranac lake, where he will probably remain two weeks.

CONFERENCE OF TAMMANY AND BUTLER MEN

NEW YORK, Aug —[Special.]—World's Saratoga special: There was a large conference this evening between the Tammany and Butler leaders. Although it was impossible to get exact facts regarding the meeting, the general conclusion is that it was in the interest of Butler. Roger A. Pryor, a devoted friend of Butler, is here. He and John Kelly have been together considerably. Cochrane, General Spinola and others arrived late to-night and immediately proceeded to consult with their other Tammany brethren.

A TALISMAN FOR CLEVELAND

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—The left hind foot of a graveyard rabbit, which has a potent influence among southern negroes, has been presented to Governor Cleveland as a talisman in the campaign. The rabbit from which the foot was taken was shot on the grave of Jesse James. The foot was superbly mounted and engraved in solid silver by a jeweler in Eufala, Alabama. It was mounted to wear on a watch charm, and bore on one side the inscription: To our next president, a talisman of victory.

A CONTRIBUTION FROM WHITTIER

NEW YORK, Aug 7.—[Special.]—The following letter is printed: Dear Friend—As I do not know the name of the secretary of your committee will you hand him the enclosed check. I am not prepared to abandon republicanism and go over to a party whose principles and measures I have constantly opposed for the last quarter of a century. Trusting that the dear old commonwealth will give the usual majority for the republican ticket this fall, I remain truly thy friend, JOHN G. WHITTIER.

CONFERENCE OF MISSOURI REPUBLICANS

ST. LOUIS, Aug 8.—A private conference of about fifty republicans, from various parts of the state, was held here this afternoon to discuss the practicability of uniting all opposition political elements in Missouri on an independent state ticket against the so-called bourbon democrats in the coming election. A full interchange of views was had and the whole matter was referred to a committee to investigate and report to the state central committee.

THE PUBLISHER OF THE IRISH NATION

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—The publisher of the Irish Nation said of Butler: Nothing can be done in any way until Butler writes his letter of acceptance. He says it won't be until Cleveland's is published. Now why under the sun should he wait for the governor to speak? Has he got nothing to say for himself? These eternal delays have put us all into this fix, and the fewer Butler indulges in for the future the better his chances in the campaign will be.

THE PACIFIC COAST

WASHINGTON, Aug 8.—[Special.]—Secretary McPherson of the republican congressional committee received a letter this morning from a friend who has just been on a tour through California and the Pacific states. He says the republicans will carry California by at least 10,000 majority, Nevada by from 3000 to 5000, and Colorado by between 6000 and 10,000.

NOMINATION FOR CONGRESS

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug 8.—In the eighth congressional convention, after a session of three days, and on the 574th ballot, Clark county, at the personal request of Captain Bushnell, withdrew his name, and cast its vote for Judge Little of Green county, who was nominated.

DEMOCRATIC RATIFICATION

Double Meeting in Faneuil Hall and Tremont Temple, Boston

BOSTON, August 8.—The democrats to-night opened the campaign by a ratification meeting. When the doors opened at Faneuil hall and Tremont temple hundreds of persons were in waiting and quickly filled the two places. Both the Temple and Faneuil hall were uncomfortably crowded. At Faneuil hall Congressman P. A. Collins presided. The first speaker was Joseph G. Abbott. He was followed by Thomas Jordan, who delivered an address which arraigned Blaine. D. F. Pillsbury followed in the same strain. The last important speaker was F. O. Prince, of the national democratic committee.

At the temple meeting William Gaston presided. Edward Avery, Judge Rodman, Josiah Quincy, Jr., and Horatio J. Swasey made the prominent addresses of the evening.

LETTERS OF REGRET

Letters were read from many prominent gentlemen. Hendricks sent the following:

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug 8.

I regret that I cannot attend the democratic meeting Friday evening in Boston. I hope it will be a great success. T. A. HENDRICKS.

Hon. S. S. Cox wrote from New York:

Dear Sir—Your invitation to your Boston meeting received. I have appointments and unavoidable engagements on that evening. In fact for the month of August I shall be pre-occupied. Regretting my inability to be on hand, I remain, yours truly, S. S. COX.

Regards to the best man, P. A. Collins.

W. F. Vilas, president of the democratic national convention, wrote from Madison, Wisconsin:

I have received by telegraph your favor of the 1st, containing an invitation to be present at the ratification meeting to be held the evening of the 8th inst. I regret that I am unable to participate in the privileges of the meeting and share the satisfaction which my brother democrats of Boston will manifest, but I only arrived home last evening from the east and am unable to return so soon.

John Kelly sent the following from Saratoga: In reply to your dispatch, it would be impossible for me to respond to the request to address the ratification meeting to be held in Boston.

Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, was one of the most prominent speakers announced for the meeting, but owing to sickness was prevented from attending the meeting.

THE RELIEF EXPEDITION

Bodies of the Victims Received at Governor's Island

NEW YORK, Aug —[Special.]—The Greely relief ships Thetis and Bear are expected here hourly, although the weather is thick, that they will probably be delayed outside. Arrangements are completed for the reception of the dead at Governor's island. The post hospital is draped in black and the battle flags of the Fourth and Fifth regiments of the United States artillery, to which some of the dead explorers belonged, are festooned on the walls. The Thetis and the Bear will be met down the bay by the United States steambarge Catalpa and a tug steam launch having on board Commodore Fillebrown of the Brooklyn navy yard. The vessels will escort the relief ships to the battery. The bodies will be taken in charge by the Brooklyn naval authorities, placed on board the vessels and delivered to General Hancock at Governor's island. Commander Schley of the relieving expedition will take the Thetis and Bear over to Brooklyn, make delivery of them and send in official reports. The bodies will be in the custody of the military at Governor's island in the hospital and guards maintained over them until removed. The secretary of war, the lieutenant general of the army, the major general commanding and other officers of the army, navy and marine corps and several distinguished citizens will be present.

A brother of Lieutenant Kislingbury arrived yesterday to attend the funeral ceremonies and take charge of his brother's body, which will be buried with impressive ceremonies at Rochester, New York, on Sunday.

After the bodies were landed they were escorted by the troops to the hospital, where they will lie in state under a guard of honor until removed by friends.

To-morrow morning Rev. Dr. Goodwin, chaplain at Governor's island, will read the burial service over the dead and deliver a sermon. The bodies of Sergeants Henry and Schneider will be sent to Cypress Hill, the former to a vault to await orders from Germany and the latter for interment in the government plot. The other bodies have been claimed by relatives.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the bodies of all except Henry and Schneider were placed in wooden cases, the large coffins to be taken to the railroad which will take them to their final resting place. Private Henry will be buried in the government plot at Cypress hill. The body of Private Schneider will remain for a few days, as it is thought his relatives in Germany will claim it.

ARRIVAL OF THE VESSELS

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—The Greely expedition ships Bear, Thetis and Alert anchored off Governor's island. General Hancock and staff received the bodies from the vessels. The fort fired a funeral salute.

Following is a list of the dead and place of burial: Lieut. James B. Lockwood, Annapolis; Lieut. Fred F. Kislingbury, Rochester, N. Y.; Sergt. Israel, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Sergt. David C. Ralston, Howard, Ohio; Sergt. David Linn, Philadelphia; Sergt. William Cross, Washington; Corp. Joseph Elison; Private William A. Ellis; Clyde, N. Y.; Private William Whisler, Ind.

PROGRAMME OF THE RECEPTION

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug 8.—The reception to Greely next Thursday includes a parade of Knights Templar, militia, several posts of the Grand Army, civic societies, fire department and school children, which will be reviewed by Mr Greely. A banquet and concert will follow in the afternoon, with illuminations, flambeaux parade and fire works in the evening.

THE TEA TRADE.

Representatives of Japanese Dealers Now in this Country on a Tour of Inspection

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—The Journal of Commerce says: On the invitation of two Japanese gentlemen representing the Nippon Seicha Kai, a tea association of tea producers and merchants in Japan, about 100 mainly interested in the tea trade sat down at Delmonico's last evening, among whom are Ira Bursley, H. H. Hawley, I. K. Montgomery, F. B. Thurber, Samuel Lee, F. W. Cheney, J. C. Phillips, Gustavus Fersey and many other prominent merchants. The Japanese charge d'affaires at Washington presided, assisted by the Japanese consul of this city. A number of speeches were made expressing a wish for closer relations between the two nations and that the new association which had been formed for that purpose would prove an entire success.

FROM THE JOURNAL OF COMMERCE

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—The Journal of Commerce says: The visit of three leading Japanese representing the tea producers and merchants of Japan is attracting much attention in mercantile circles here. The gentlemen named go about the city very quietly, but keenly observe all and take copious notes of what they see and hear.

In reference to the visit Henry Hawley of Porter, Hawley & Co. said: The object of the mission is to improve the friendly feelings and commercial relations of the United States and Japan. They have visited all the leading cities of the country to ascertain in what manner commercial interests can be increased. The association they represent is composed of merchants who propose to suit the tastes of Americans and protect the market against adulteration.

F. L. Thurber said that in his recent trip to Japan he was astonished at the marvellous commercial progress, and heartily favors. Great good would result to both countries.

One of the Japanese visitors said: The primary object of our visit is to increase business relations. We have been sent on behalf of the producers and merchants of Japan to confer with representatives of the trade here. We are exceedingly gratified with the reception which the merchants gave us and will not fail to give news of such kind welcome to our friends at home.

Stocks Open Lower, but Afterwards Takes a Sharp Turn Upward

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—Governments firm. Railways strong. Stocks opened heavy and lower on reports of selling for foreign account. The decline ranged from ½ to 2⅝. New York Central, Lake Shore, Michigan Central and Union Pacific led the downward movement. The weakness was due to free sales for short account, the bears yielding to the belief that the upward movement had spent its force. The bulls have encouraged this belief and have worked to secure a large short interest. Having been successful in this, they turned the market this afternoon. The shorts became alarmed at the sharp change for the better and made an effort to cover. Offerings however were light and they succeeded in acquiring but little stock on the way up. The improvement in prices from the lowest point of the day ranged from ½ to 1½. The market closed strong at or near the outside. Compared with last night's closing Jersey Central is 5 per cent higher, St. Paul 2¾, Northwest 1¾, Lackawanna 1¾, Reading 1¾, Northern Pacific preferred 1¾ and other active shares ½ to 1 per cent. Michigan Central, New York Central, Delaware & Hudson and Texas however are 1½@1⅞ lower.

How Baking Powders are Made

When rival companies are disputing as to what ingredients are to be found in the best baking powder the public will be interested in the following definition of these now indispensable articles, as given by Appleton's Cyclopedia, the acknowledged American authority.

The best baking powders are composed of bitartrate of potash (cream of tartar), tartaric acid, carbonate of ammonia, and soda bicarbonate, bound together by a little starch."

Catholic Total Abstinence Society

CHICAGO, Aug 8.—At the afternoon session the committee on resolutions presented a long report. It characterizes those who cause crime and misery by selling intoxicating liquors as criminals, holds that moral suasion alone cannot prevail against intemperance, that the law must be invoked, and that it is a dire calamity to trust the management of public affairs to those who hold office at the good will of liquor dealers. It continues: While we recognize moral suasion as a basis of temperance work, we nevertheless declare our confidence in the legal restriction of the liquor traffic as the best means to the advancement of that work. Such restriction may go to whatever extent it seems best to us in our capacity of catholic temperance advocates. We emphasize, however, that we cannot countenance or in any way encourage the liquor interest, nor the less vote for it.

An attempt to insert resolutions in favor of actual prohibition caused a spirited discussion, but the report of the committee prevailed without change.

The report also declared that it is the right of Catholics in the army and navy of the United States to have Catholic chaplains, sympathizing with the struggles of the Irish people, protesting against the effort of the Italian government to take possession of property of the Propaganda, and complimenting President Arthur for his promptness in saving the American college to the Propaganda.

The following officers were elected: President, Rev. J. M. Cleary, Kenosha, Wis.; vice president, Rev. James M. Melia of Brooklyn; treasurer, Rev. J. D. Banks of Ohio; secretary, Philip A. Nolan of Philadelphia. Adjourned.

During the forenoon session a committee of seven was appointed to draft a memorial on the subject of total abstinence to be presented to the coming bishops' council at Baltimore.

The Hop Crop

NEW YORK, Aug —[Special.]—A member of the firm of Lilienthal Bros., hop brokers, in Water street, who has just returned from a short trip through the hop growing portions of this state, was seen by a reporter this morning and said: I rate the English hop crop as equal to 140,000 to 150,000 of our average bales, and I estimate the shortage at 35@40 per cent. Last week we shipped to England 5000 bales. England has on hand 30,000 to 35,000 bales. Figuring on this they will have to import from Germany and America about 180,000 bales. The hops in this state this year are coming out clean and white. True the hop market has sagged away for some months and has been almost dead. This has been an unfavorable season for brewers, though statistics show that beer increased 10 per cent last year. California hops, in my estimation, compare very favorably with other states. The hops of the Pacific coast have quadrupled during the past four years. California will ship from 30,000 to 40,000 bales this year. The shortage in this state this year will average about one third, and the entire crop of this country will probably fall short from 25 to 30 per cent. From other sources it is learned that hop growers and brokers in this commodity and it will come before the end of the present season.

A Bankrupt City

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug 8.—[Special.]—This city is a total wreck financially. Besides being saddled with a bonded debt of $1, which is about all it can carry under the law, the issue of orders [illegible] $160,000 outstanding. The treasury is empty and many employes have had no pay for three months. All the banks have refused to further advance, and the municipal machinery must come to a full stop. The condition of affairs has been brought about by two things: extravagance and waste in the conduct of the government and insufficient revenue to meet necessary expenses. For the past three or four years there has been a deficit of $20,000 a year, which has been funded. The deficit this year will be twice the sum of last year. These obligations are now maturing and there are no funds to meet them. Policemen are compelled to go on the street to get their orders for pay cashed, money being for housing only at a heavy discount.

Jeff Davis' Tribute to Johnston

NEW YORK, Aug 7.—[Special.]—The Sun's special prints Jeff Davis's letter read at Dallas, Texas, yesterday. In it he says: When Texas seceded from the Union and war was inaugurated between the states, Albert Sidney Johnston, true to the interest of his adopted mother and sovereign, left the army of the United States and offered his sword to the confederacy, and when commanding the confederate army at one of the great battles of the war, and victory was within his grasp, he fell mortally wounded. Protest Against a Horse Railroad

NEW YORK, Aug 7.—[Special.]—Much indignation is expressed at the action of the board of aldermen yesterday in granting a franchise for a horse railroad through Broadway. August Belmont and others offered $1,000,000 for the franchise a few years ago. Kelly and [illegible] denounce the action.

The Tribune says: The city is being [illegible] for the profit of aldermen, that it is notorious, and calls for an injunction to stop the proceedings.

The Mail says: The grant is an outrage and utterly indefensible, and calls for [illegible] citizens. It says: The law under which this jobbing was made possible was passed by the last legislature amid scenes of open and disgraceful bribery. The Star denounced the bill in its every stage and advised the governor to veto it, but he deemed it a wholesome and necessary measure.

John Roach's Defense

NEW YORK, Aug 8.—[Special.]—John Roach, the ship builder, denies that he recently attempted to sell to the government the yacht Yosemite, to be worked over into a gunboat, and figures as a consequence that there could have been no false pretense about such alleged attempted sale. First, the vessel was not offered to the government with the idea of selling her, says Roach, and second, her tonnage on the government register is 481 tons, a fact easily accessible to any one who wished to inform himself. The statement which said that the vessel was represented of 700 or 800 tons burthen is not true, because as I have said she was never offered for sale to the government.

Curious Recovery

NEW YORK, Aug —[Special.]—Abram Goddebach, a man robust of Damascus, Pennsylvania, was stricken with paralysis early the year ago. Physicians from New York and Philadelphia did no good and he remained in an almost helpless condition. A day or two ago, during a violent thunderstorm, he was hurled across the room by an electric shock, and he thereupon arose fully recovered and now walks, talks, eats and drinks as before.

O'Donnell and His Lepers

WASHINGTON, Aug 7.—[Special.]—The report sent here from Baltimore that Dr. C. O'Donnell had left the city was incorrect. The doctor lectured there last night to a large crowd on the subject of Leprosy. He did not exhibit his lepers, but showed a number of photographs of Chinese in various stages of the disease. The authorities here are of the opinion that he has no lepers with him, and should he visit this city he will not be interfered with.

EJECTED BY THE GOVERNMENT

Payne and his Deluded Followers Driven from the Indian Territory—Their Village Burned

CALDWELL, Kas., Aug —Yesterday General Hatch, with a company, with Adjutant General Finley and Inspector Greene of the interior department, visited Payne's camp at Rock Falls in the Indian country, and after reading the president's proclamation to him and his assembled followers directed them to leave the territory before the morning or they would be ejected. This took place in a small board shanty occupied by the Oklahoma Chief newspaper, the forms of which were being made up at the time. Payne at first attempted to discuss the legal aspects of the case, but soon became angry and abusive in language, calling all the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, a pack of thieves. Cooper, the editor, chimed in with vituperation and threats.

Failing to provoke the officers into a quarrel, Payne said he had a valise full of money and would give $1000 to be tried by a United States court, and in order to assure the officers of a case against him would then and there sell them liquor or cigars without license or permits. He urged the officers to dine with him, and offered them plenty of liquor if they would do so.

THE COMMUNITY ARRESTED

By this time a large crowd had assembled from the tents and shanties along the river, and the officers again admonished them to leave and not return. The only reply was a torrent of abusive epithets that cannot be published. The officers then returned to the camp, ten miles distant.

Early this morning two squadrons of the Ninth United States cavalry, commanded by Captain Moore, appeared in the boomers' camp, and under direction of Indian agent Rogers arrested the whole community and took charge of the printing office. All the women and children and the men who were not offenders were escorted to the Kansas line with their personal property. Six old offenders, namely D. L. Payne, J. B. Cooper, D. G. Greathouse, T. W. Rekeberger, John McGrew and S. L. Mosely, were loaded in a six mule wagon and started under escort of Lieutenant Jackson and fifteen men for Fort Smith, Ark., 300 miles distant.

The paper was ready to go to press, and upon inquiry a number of printers were found in the community, who soon printed the edition of 100 copies. The press was then carefully packed and loaded into the wagon and started under escort for Muskogee, it being confiscated property and under the law not pleviable.

THE VILLAGE BURNED

The printing office and other buildings, including two boarding houses, a drug store, cigar stand and restaurant and some cheap dwellings, were then burned to the ground, and the last vestige of Rock Falls had disappeared. Payne threatened to cut the throat of the first man who attempted to arrest him, but one of the colored soldiers marched him about the camp for an hour.

Payne has lost whatever prestige he may have had heretofore with the thinking community. He has been [illegible] a week old was [illegible] last night after General Hatch had left Rock Falls. The poor deluded squatters now realize that they have paid him many thousands of dollars without any equivalent. The number ejected from the camp is about 200 people. A large crowd of [illegible] were present from Hunnewell [illegible] approved the course [illegible] territory [illegible].

It is believed this will end the boomers' idea of trying to settle the Indian lands. Orders have been issued to [illegible] arrest the leaders and take them to Fort Smith.

JAY EYE SEE AT BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug 8.—The great event of the day was the attempt of Jay Eye See to lower his best record of 2:10, and this fine performance in making a mile in 2:10¾, the fastest ever trotted over the Buffalo track, and of Maud S.'s best as six years old. The little horse was in the best possible condition, and after jogging a few in 2:14½, Bithers nodded and this little wonder, as steady as a clock, took the word, Firebrand a distance in the rear coming very fast. They reached the quarter pole in 31½. Down the back stretch the horse flew, reaching the half in 1:05½. They went to the three quarter in 1:38, and [illegible] is crowded on the track, seeing the wonder come home. Shaking his gamey head, he shot down the stretch, reaching the gate in 2:10¾. The announcement of the time was received with great disappointment. No pools were sold, the horse beating his record.

FIRES

BIG BLAZE IN ROACH'S SHIPYARD

CHESTER, Penn., Aug 8.—This morning fire was discovered by a watchman in a blacksmith shop in a frame building in Roach's ship yard. The flames soon spread to the punch shed, also frame, and covered nearly an acre of ground. All efforts to save the immense building were given up, and attention directed to saving the binding shed a short distance away. The efforts of the firemen were unavailing and it was soon destroyed. The firemen then directed their attention to the foundry, a large brick building adjoining the binding shed, and it was only by herculean efforts that it was saved. Telegrams were sent to Wilmington and Philadelphia for assistance, but the fire was gotten under control sufficient to countermand the orders. The principal loss will be on the punch shed, where was a good deal of heavy and expensive machinery, valued at $35,000. The rolls alone cost $10,000 to $12,000 apiece, and there were three or four sets of these. There were six sets of punches valued at $6000, and other machinery proportionately expensive and required in daily use, as it enters into the shaping or preparation of all plates and iron used in a ship. Much of this machinery was new and will require several months to replace it. The loss in the binding shed will reach over $200,000. The loss on both buildings and machinery is fully insured. The fire throws about 5000 men out of work and will virtually stop the yard and suspend work on the government cruisers for some time. Roach was at his summer residence in College Point and is expected to-morrow.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Trot at the Bay District Park

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 7.—(Delayed special.)—The race for the 2:40 class at the Bay district park yesterday was but fairly attended, though it was widely known that some very fast horses would make their appearance in this class for the circuit. Guy Wilkes was favorite in the pools, commanding $150 against $60 for James H. and a like amount for the field, in which were Blanche, Col. Hocking and Menlo.

Blanche won the first heat easily in 2:25½, but there was no change in the betting.

Guy won the second heat handsomely in 2:24¾, Hocking second and Blanche third. Guy was now a greater favorite than ever, but the fielders still had hopes that James H. would retrieve their falling fortunes, and in this heat the result was left to the twain, both getting away and trotting neck and neck to the club house, where James was off his feet, and Guy won by a length in 2:24¾, Hocking being a poor third.

On the fourth heat and result of the race there was no betting, but the private reputation of James H. was well sustained, as, getting off badly and in a pocket at the first turn, combined with a slight collision with Hocking, he still held his own and was almost even at the half mile post with the favorite. From thence the two came neck and neck down the home stretch, but James H. broke again in nearing the wire and Guy won the grand heat in 2:21¾, a superb showing for a 2:40 class.

The three moneys were awarded: Guy Wilkes first, Blanche second and James H. third, and it was generally conceded that a better race in this class had never been seen on the Bay district grounds.

The Confederate Reunion

General Sullivan Ross and others addressed the veterans. Miss S. S. Thompson of South Carolina read an original poem, dedicated to Jefferson Davis. A grand parade of state militia concluded the programme. Over 18,000 visitors were at the camp ground. Governor Hubbard arrived to-day.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug 8.—This was the last day of the ex-confederate reunion. Ex-Governor Hubbard delivered an oration on the war, holding the vast audience two hours. A committee was appointed to memorialize the Texas legislature to appropriate funds for the removal of the remains of General Parsons, Col. M. Standish and other confederate soldiers buried in Mexico. Col. Wylie, an ex-union soldier, read an address of thanks in behalf of the union guests. The next reunion will be held at Fort Worth. A meeting of ex-confederate prisoners on Johnson Island was held and organization perfected, the object being to look after the graves of confederates on the island.

Motion for a Survey Denied.

WASHINGTON, August 8.—The acting secretary of the interior has declined to grant the motion of Robert Carrick for reconsideration of the decision refusing to order a survey of Arsenal island, opposite St. Louis. The original decision was based upon statements by United States engineers that Arsenal island was a shifting island, but Carrick now produces the affidavit of two civil engineers of St. Louis declaring the island has been fixed or anchored. In his decision the secretary says: This department would not order a survey of land of the commercial value and importance of Arsenal island upon mere ex parte and contradictory affidavits and statements without a full investigation, during which all the parties in interest might be heard, nor especially at the solicitation of private persons so long as the general government is carrying on its work of improvement, and when it is uncertain to what extent the land may be required for public purposes.

San Francisco Ships a Large Number of Lepers to China.

DEPLORABLE CASE OF DROWNING AT WALLULA

Accidental Shooting in Washington County—Tacoma's New Hotel Opened—Montana Indians Starving

Lepers Sent Home.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 8.—To-day nineteen Chinese lepers were sent to China on the steamer Oceanic. The fare was paid by the city and $5 given to each of the involuntary emigrants. One escaped, but was recaptured.

[Special.]—The city paid full fare and gave $5 to each of the involuntary emigrants so that he would have means of paying his boat hire from Hong Kong up the Canton river to that city, where they would find many to sympathize with them. The arrangements had to be made secretly, that none of those contemplating passage on the steamer might not be frightened into not going. The police took entire charge of the shipments and brought the lepers to the dock in the morning, when they were safely got aboard. One of the most lively of the lepers attempted to escape, but was captured and put on board. A pen was provided for them and they were boxed up by the ship's carpenter to keep them from the other Chinese passengers. They have comfortable quarters and will be well treated on their trip. Every movement connected with the work of corralling the lepers and getting them aboard the ship had to be conducted with the utmost secrecy. Had the fact of the contemplated shipment been known in Chinatown, writs of habeas corpus would have been invoked and the leprous passengers detained to await decision of the courts. The poor victims were horribly surprised when they learned this morning that they were to be sent home. They have always liked their quarters in the pest house, and have always had the greatest dread of being returned to China.

Meeting of Railroad Agents

[Special.]—Representatives of transcontinental railroads in this city held an important meeting at the Palace hotel yesterday, the object of which was to devise means whereby the Asiatic and Australian trade with San Francisco might be further developed. The resolve of the Australian colonies to withdraw their subsidy to the Pacific Mail steamship company unless something was done at this end of the line to lighten their burthen was doubtless the main cause of the assembly. The meeting was of an informal nature and no conclusions were definitely arrived at. Another meeting will be held this afternoon.

San Francisco Notes.

It is stated that Allen G. Thurman will open the democratic campaign here in a speech. He is expected here shortly.

The Post this evening says that the telegram announcing the betrothal of Miss Eva Mackay to one of the Colonna family is asserted to be only a rumor by Mr. Mackay.

The Panama Canal

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 8.—In answer to adverse criticisms made on the progress of construction of the Panama canal, De Lesseps declares that nothing has occurred which will prevent the work from being completed at the date fixed by him—888. The company has $30,000,000 at its disposal, and has authority to issue its papers for a further sum of $14,000,000.

A Former Portlander Arrested

[Special.]—John T. Angell, formerly of Portland, was arrested yesterday charged with misdemeanor. The complaint charges that accused has been acting as agent and solicitor for a life insurance company which was incorporated in the east and which has not filed an authenticated copy of the charter with the commissioner of insurance as required by law.

The Grain Crop

[Special.]—As yet there has been no estimate of the amount of the grain crop in California which is not merely a guess, but reports from various districts show the yield to have been greater than was expected during the weeks just preceding harvest. The surplus for export will certainly be greater than that of last year.

Personal

[Special.]—Judge and Mrs. Denny got off for China in the Oceanic at noon yesterday. They will return in November.

Miss Carrie Adams of Salem is at the Palace and will spend several months here as student at the art school.

More Chinese

[Special.]—The steamer Arabic, which arrived from China to-day, brought 212 Chinese passengers, of which 139 were for this city, 41 for Honolulu, 32 for Victoria and 1 for Portland. Before the Oceanic sailed for Hong Kong 40 Chinese detained on board were taken off on writs of habeas corpus.

The Sharon Divorce Case.

A libel suit for $50,000 was instituted to-day against the Alta California by Sarah A. Sharon, plaintiff in the Sharon divorce case. The alleged cause is the publication of William M. Neilson's statement accusing her of forging what are known as the "My dear wife" letters.

Republican State Committee

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 8.—At the meeting of the republican state committee yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected: Chairman, A. P. Williams of San Francisco; vice chairman, John F. Swift; secretary, James B. Findlayson; treasurer, John A. Bowen.

Propose to Consolidate

This evening's Post announces that a proposition is on foot to consolidate the California and Consolidated Virginia mining companies into one corporation, to be named the Consolidated California and Virginia mining company.

State University

[Special.]—The state university at Berkeley opened its doors yesterday for the coming school year. One hundred and thirty applied for admission to the freshman class, but forty were unable to pass examination.

Disagreeable Weather

[Special.]—Since the shower of four days ago the weather has been intensely disagreeable, the early part of the day being hot, in the afternoon the wind comes in hurricanes and the nights come in foggy.

The Mechanics' Fair

[Special.]—The mechanics' fair, which opened two days ago, is notably not successful up to this time. Exhibits are still largely in a state of preparation and the attendance is small.

Chinese Discharged

Thirteen of the Chinese who arrived on the Oceanic on the 27th of last month were this morning discharged by Judge Sawyer under the recent decision on parole evidence.

STATE DISPATCHES.

Accidental Shooting

FOREST GROVE, Aug 8.—[Special.]—Oliver, eldest son of George Johns of Tilley, while out hunting yesterday was accidentally shot by a comrade, the ball breaking the left arm near the shoulder. The scene of the accident was a point on Scoggins creek some twenty miles from here. The bullet was fired at a marten, but struck a tree and glanced, taking effect as above stated, although a distance of forty rods separated the parties. The wounded boy suffered intensely on the trip home, as the afternoon was exceedingly warm. Dr. Ward was summoned and dressed the wound most skillfully, but thinks that amputation may become necessary, as the arm was terribly mangled.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

The New Hotel at Tacoma Opened

TACOMA, Aug 8.—[Special.]—Fully 800 guests here are attending the grand ball on the occasion of the formal opening of the Northern Pacific railroad hotel named The Tacoma, built at a cost of $200,000 and superintended by W. D. Tyler, late manager of Pennsylvania Central hotels at Altoona and Cresson, as well as to celebrate the opening of a trail by the Northern Pacific railroad up to and beyond the great glaciers at Mount Tacoma, by which tourists may ascend now over 11,000 feet. This trail makes accessible the greatest glaciers of the continent. Guests present are Hon. C. B. Wright of Philadelphia; Hon. Frederick Billings of New York, ex-president of the Northern Pacific railroad; Anthony G. Thomas of New York, second vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad; Justice Samuel F. Miller of the United States supreme court; Mrs. Miller, Miss Lida Miller and Miss Corkhill, daughter of the district attorney for the District of Columbia; Gen. J. W. Sprague, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, United States army, and other prominent guests from San Francisco, Portland, Chicago, St. Paul, Washington, Philadelphia and New York.

Sad Case of Drowning

WALLULA JUNCTION, W. T., Aug 7.—[Special.]—A most distressing accident occurred this evening, which cast a deep gloom of sadness over this little community. While a party were bathing in the Walla Walla river Mrs. P. W. Koppikus, wife of our freight clerk, got in over her depth, and Mr. Thomas went to her rescue, and catching her by the hand tried to save her, but she broke away from him and sank. He made another attempt to reach her but failed, when Mr. W. H. Lear of the Northern Pacific train service dived and brought her to the surface, but being clasped by Mrs. Koppikus in such a manner as to leave him powerless, they sank and were seen no more until the bodies were recovered late in the evening. Mr. Lear's body was taken to his home at Cheney, where his wife is.

MONTANA.

Piegan Indians Starving

HELENA, M. T., Aug 8.—The leading citizens and board of trade of Helena last evening wired a petition to the secretary of the interior urging immediate action for the relief of 3000 Piegan Indians at Blackfoot agency, who, despite contrary reports, are actually starving to death. The supply of provisions at the agency is almost exhausted, and rations are issued so scant that they would be insufficient to sustain life except for the plenteousness of wild berries in the hills. Stockmen report many cattle killed on the ranges by starving Indians.

Marble Walls Taken Out.

NEW YORK, August 8.—[Special.]—The marble walls and Corinthian columns once much admired in the St. Nicholas hotel have been transferred to Brooklyn. They were purchased by the United States Cremation company. The St. Nicholas marble will be used on this building.

Mrs. Twist, No. 18 Avenue D, says she has been troubled with worms for more than a year, and that she took one bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., which brought away from her over three hundred worms, big and little. She now believes herself to be entirely free from disease.

Messrs. D. & J. W. Colton, of Winchester, Ind., happened last spring to get some of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. After selling a few bottles, the demand became so great for it that their stock was soon exhausted. They state that it has produced the best effect wherever used, and is very popular among the people.

Andrew Downing, of Cranburgh township, Venango county, gave his child one teaspoonful of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and she passed 177 worms. Next morning, on repetition of the dose, she passed 113 more.

Jonathan Houghman, of West Union, Park county, Iowa, writes that he is unable to supply the demand, as the people in his neighborhood say, after a trial of the others, that none is equal to Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge.

Mrs. Hardy, 119 Suffolk street, writes us that she has been troubled with worms for some three years, and that she used one vial of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., which brought away over fifty large worms. Her usual good health immediately returned.

TURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 9 1884.

THE REPUBLICAN OUTLOOK.

The redistribution of electoral votes, based on the census of 1880, introduces no new elements in the contest of this year which necessitate political calculations materially different from those of 1876 and 1880 Under the apportionment of the census of 1870 and after the admission of Colorado in 1876, the number of electoral votes was 369 Between Hayes and Tilden the division was 185 for the former and 184 for the latter. In 1880 the number was still 369, of which 214 were cast for Garfield and 155 for Hancock New Jersey and Nevada were the only northern states wholly carried by the democratic candidate In the former the plurality was 2010 in the latter 770. Five of the electors of California were also carried for Hancock, but by less than 100 votes, while one was carried for Garfield by about 600 Hancock got the 'solid south' then having 138 votes, and obtained 17 votes from northern states. Garfield carried the popular vote in eighteen states and had a plurality in one; Hancock carried the popular vote in seventeen states and had a plurality in two There was a total vote for Weaver (greenback) on the popular returns of 306,219 This vote was largest in Missouri, where it reached 35,045 In Michigan it was 34,895, in Iowa 32 327 and in Texas 26,200 The entire prohibition vote of the country was but 11,869. This was distributed among twenty states, Ohio leading with 2616. This year the prohibition vote will doubtless be considerably larger. The greenback vote, under a vigorous contest for Butler, may also increase.

The total number of electoral votes is now 401,—an increase of 32. Of these the states known distinctively as "the south" have 153, a gain of 15, while the northern states, gaining 17 have a total of 248 But the present situation may not be so nearly like that of 1880 as these figures would seem to imply. In each section are three or four states, more or less liable to change. Reports from Louisiana, West Virginia, North Carolina and Florida indicate a tendency of sentiment to the republican side, chiefly growing out of the various phases of the tariff question which affect those states respectively, while in some of the northern states, notably New York and Connecticut, there is a considerable defection from the republican party, which may change the result from that of 1880, unless the republican expectation of accessions to their ranks from democratic artisans and laborers shall be realized. It is to be said, however, that there is every prospect now that this expectation will not be disappointed. Notwithstanding the acknowledged withdrawal of a considerable body of voters from the republican party in New York and elsewhere, it is a fact that the managers of the republican canvass already have a confidence of success not equalled in former contests. It comes chiefly from assurances obtained by careful inquiry among the working classes that their votes will be cast on the republican side more generally than ever before. The chief reason assigned for this change is the attitude of the parties on the tariff question. In the manufacturing states public sentiment is firmly fixed in support of protection and it is useless to remonstrate, argue or juggle with it. The working people, as well as their employers are firm believers in the policy, and in the great manufacturing states there is no political career for the man who does not accept it. The republican platform is outspoken for protection, while the democratic position is a studied ambiguity. People who have interests which they want protected are afraid of the free-trade proclivities of the democratic party In a state like ours the argument is of little weight, and therefore it is not easy to apprehend here how powerful it is in the states whose industries are widely developed and whose people are firmly fixed in the opinion that their prosperity depends on maintenance of a vigilant guard against what they call 'British free trade."

It is asserted by the managers of the republican campaign that there are now far better reasons for belief in success than existed in 1880 While this opinion may, of course, be liable to error, there can be no doubt that it is very strongly entertained. It is claimed with great confidence, based on a wide range of the most careful observation, that no state carried in 1880 can be lost now, and this is not said, the committees declare, without taking into account the "independent" movement and allowing it its full weight. There is a "bolt" on both sides, and the question is, which is the larger one. The republican committees assert that they have already taken the full gauge of the losses, and that they have positive assurance of gains that will overbalance it. Then it is expected that California and Nevada, which went democratic by so small a vote in 1880, will be recovered, and powerful efforts, with more or less hope of success will be put forth to secure West Virginia, New Jersey, Florida and North Carolina Virginia, likewise, is to be made fighting ground. Let no one suppose that these statements as to the republican campaign are idle boasts. An energy superior to that ever yet exhibited by the republican party in any contest will be thrown into the contest of this year, and they who remember what energy it has displayed on former occasions may realize what this means It is possible, undoubtedly, that it may be beaten, but appearances must undergo a great change if it do not secure a more decisive victory than that of four years ago.

Mr. Grover Cleveland finds it not so easy to write his letter of acceptance Blaine was chaffed a good deal, because of his tardiness, and we were told just to wait and see how readily a plain and honest statesman, writing without craft or guile, would respond to the notice of his nomination. Well, a month has already elapsed, and no letter, and now we are informed that it cannot be ready for two weeks more. When beefy mediocrity is set to the task of dealing with that juggle called the democratic platform, and required to write something that shall be ambiguous and evasive, and at the same time not wide open to contempt, it is a more serious job than the whole twelve labors of Hercules

At length Mr. Beecher is satisfied and says he will support Cleveland. He finds that Cleveland committed a mistake about thirteen years ago, which also was about the time when another mistake, which gained considerable notoriety, was reported to have been made Good men sometimes need the benefit of the statute of limitations. It is fortunate, perhaps, that Mr Beecher's political status is at length settled. Our democratic brethren seem to want him, and as a member of that party, with Curtis and others, he is a disturbing and repellant force, making many democrats uncomfortable and inclining them to seek republican connections.

The Chicago Tribune has a special dispatch from New York which says that the Halpin woman has suddenly disappeared from the locality where she has been living for several years past, and that no one there can tell where she now is. Also that the first money appropriated by the democratic national committee for expenses of the campaign was the sum necessary to satisfy her and get her out of the way of the ubiquitous interviewer.

The theatrical experiences of Mrs Langtry in America have been profitable, from a pecuniary point of view at least, if the figures stated by her are correct. She asserts that she has cleared $200,000 since she has been upon the stage, nearly all of which time has been passed in America.

Meantime the signs multiply that those who formulated the plea that the leading issues of the campaign were "moral" rather than 'political" are becoming disposed to withdraw from that position.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

How shall we make the most of the industrial resources of the country? There is now an immense amount of mental activity in every department of industry seeking to solve this problem In agriculture, in mining, in manufactures, multitudes of keen intellects are at work seeking how, from a given amount of raw material, the largest product can be obtained, and that with the least possible expenditure of force. It is this which lies at the bottom of the interest now becoming so general in technical education in our older states The reason why we should have technical schools is plain and simple enough It is that the man who knows can accomplish more than the man who does not know The one engages in a particular piece of work knowing what materials are needed, and just what to do with those materials, the more perfect his knowledge in both particulars, the more successful is he in the result There is less consumption of material and labor, and a larger and better product The other is constantly making mistakes, wastes material and labor, and if his product be good it usually costs too much that is it costs more than is necessary. Any one can see this in noticing the work of the simplest and commonest handicraftsman. The difference between the good and the poor carpenter is that one knows how to work up his lumber and material better than the other, and ordinarily that is because he is better educated He may have attended no school, he may have served no longer an apprenticeship in time, but he has taken pains to learn, and has learned that of which the other is ignorant.

Is it not manifest that when we come to deal with the great forces of nature, when we come to deal with complicated mechanical processes, with chemistry, etc, that it is of the highest importance that each young man who intends to devote himself to any of the leading industries should seek a thorough training to fit himself for the particular department in which he is to work? Now just that kind of training is what we call technical education Every man it should be quite superfluous to say should have as much general knowledge as he can acquire, the more the better But the man who is to be a mining engineer, for example, requires special training for that specific kind of work, and he should learn many things that can hardly be learned (certainly not without great and unnecessary difficulty) by going into a mine immediately on leaving the school or college where he has been taught only general principles He should take a course in a mining and metallurgical school, where, under the guidance of competent teachers, with ample laboratories, he can learn both the general principles applicable to the subject and also how to apply those principles to the actual work After going through a course of this character, his head and his hand both taught trained and disciplined, then he is prepared to engage in any particular mining operation in a way to get the most that can be obtained from that mine and with the least cost. In other words, when he enters upon his work he knows what to do, and how to do it

It is therefore, difficult to overestimate the value of technological schools. What the law, the medical, the theological schools are to those who propose to enter either of those professions the technological schools are to those who are destined for what may or should be called the scientific professions It has been the universal practice to speak of law medicine and divinity as the learned professions and so they are, or ought to be That is, the members of those professions who are competent to fill the places they occupy must have the requisite learning But the learning required of the lawyer is not that required by the physician Equally should the architect, the engineer the industrial chemist, be a man of learning each one should have the learning needful for his work and should know all that belongs to the subject matter with which he has to deal James Nasmyth whose autobiography recently published should be read at least by all students, is an admirable illustration of what is doing in the present age to elevate the character of the men engaged in the practical industries to make those industries learned professions and from those industries to obtain the best results

It is an encouraging feature of the educational system of to day that the technological schools are increasing in number and are being liberally endowed. We speak now, of course, of these schools in eastern states In our newer states, Oregon included, facilities of similar kind are wanted and we trust the subject will receive the attention it deserves

From the advance introductory chapters of Poor's Manual of the Railroads of the United States for 1884 interesting statements, which illustrate in striking manner the magnitude of the interests involved in the country's gigantic railway system, are gleaned as follows

There were in the United States at the close of the fiscal year, 1883, 120 552 miles of railroad the aggregate share capital of which equaled $3 708 060 583 funded debt $3 465 040 383 floating debt $25. 378 345 total $7,495 471 311 There were constructed and opened during the fiscal year 6 091 miles of new line at a cost represented by stock and debt of $4 8 721 202

The gross earnings of all the railroads for 1883 were $823 772 924 against $770 209 399 for 1882 their current expenditures were $525 406,359 net earnings from operations, $298 366 565 earnings from other sources $71 332 164 making a total of net earnings of $369 708 729, out of which were paid—interest, $173-190,064, dividends, $102,050 548

There were transported upon the railroads of the United States the past year 400 453 439 tons of freight, the value of which at only $25 to the ton would have exceeded $10 000 000 000 The total length of all tracks was 140 183 miles of which 78 491 miles were laid with steel rails The number of locomotive engines employed was 23 823 of freight cars 718 861 of passenger cars, 17 899 of baggage, mail and express cars, 5948.

In the face of such figures, the claim of the Manual that the railway interest in the United States "now overshadows all others and is the one upon which all other business interests rest" does not seem at all unreasonable

Now there is a new version of the Cleveland scandal The real offender, we are told was a friend of Cleveland's, a family man whose social position and domestic peace the now eminent Grover, then an obscure person generously protected by assuming the paternity of the boy But now the conditions are changed the friend's daughter is married, and Grover having in turn reached a high position and having a character to protect the friend comes forward and takes upon himself the whole offense This is very touching Only it is a little thin without the affidavits to support it The object in getting up this little story seems to be to satisfy the scruples of Brother Beecher The canvass grows more and more interesting as 'personal character' becomes the leading and indeed the only issue Nothing like an issue of 'morality,' purity and 'reform

A brisk and profitable trade with South America is now enjoyed by builders in the vicinity of New York and Boston who manufacture for export 'ready-made houses" The structures are of wood, and 1500 of them have already been sold and set up in the new city of La Plata, in Buenos Ayres

YACHT RACE.—The yacht race yesterday between the sloops Paragon and Kitsie attracted more attention than those not interested in [illegible] would expect. At the time of starting [illegible] were gathered at convenient points [illegible] boats came up for the finish the crowd [illegible] numbers. That it was interesting [illegible] the hearty cheers given the boats as [illegible] Stark street. The Paragon was [illegible] Bell three years ago and has been in [illegible] for hire since. She measures [illegible] water line. The Kitsie was built [illegible] Smart for Captain Woods and is a private [illegible] She was built to clean out the [illegible] has all the best sailing [illegible] Awake, which for three years carried the championship flag. Yesterday's race was [illegible] the one sailed last Saturday, when [illegible] beat the Kitsie and the Paragon came [illegible] The Kitsie measures 19 feet on the water [illegible] inches more than the Paragon, which [illegible] minute 20 seconds start as time [illegible] F. M. Howe sailed the Kitsie and James [illegible] Paragon, both having picked crews. At [illegible] Paragon was started, soon taking a [illegible] a barrel of water into [illegible] lost half of her time [illegible] A fresh north west wind [illegible] and as both boats had thrown out their [illegible] they had all the wind wanted. Both [illegible] on the port tack, a load of a dozen lengths [illegible] the Paragon for some distance. Then [illegible] ahead, leading the Paragon one tack [illegible] which the Paragon widened the stretch [illegible] the two boats, turning the lower stake about [illegible] ahead. This lead was held and never [illegible] until off Ash street, when the first [illegible] ahead and had doubled her lead by [illegible] street was reached. Thence up [illegible] she made a steady gain [illegible] thirty lengths ahead. Coming down [illegible] "heading off" streaks, and the Kitsie [illegible] sail better, making up fully a third of [illegible] by the time the Paragon crossed the [illegible] course was sailed over in two hours and [illegible] the Paragon winning by one minute [illegible] or her exact time allowance. [illegible] the boats were sailed for all that was in [illegible] prettier or closer race has never been [illegible] river between two boats. No accident [illegible] occurred, and the Kitsie took in no water [illegible] of the Paragon before the wind [illegible] a surprise to her crew as to those on [illegible] boats have excellent bearings, but the [illegible] sailed with working sails only, carrying [illegible] her opponent. The winning crew [illegible] congratulations upon their coming [illegible] future other races are talked of, [illegible] admirers are anxious to try conclusions with the Paragon.

COMPLIMENTS TO THE FOURTEENTH.—[illegible] light excursion, whose pleasures limited [illegible] mention yesterday, was one of [illegible] affairs which gentlemen of the army [illegible] they undertake anything in the line [illegible] entertainment. The steamer Lurline, with [illegible] ladies from Vancouver barracks, [illegible] at 8:30 took on board invited guests [illegible] It was a moonlight excursion in [illegible] the newly arrived officers and ladies [illegible] Fourteenth infantry and the Portlanders [illegible] acquaintances which were pleasant for [illegible] and promising for the future. The [illegible] converted into a dancing room, and [illegible] please the fancies of the company, [illegible] music busy as the boat went down [illegible] into the Columbia and back again. A [illegible] and pleasant conversation on deck [illegible] aside from dancing. Without attempting a list of those present, who made [illegible] complement for the boat's capacity in the [illegible] the following names of Portland [illegible] recalled: Ex-Senator and Mrs. W. H. [illegible] and Mrs. Kelly and Miss Kelly; Dr. [illegible] Wilson, Miss Lewis, Miss Williams, [illegible] the Misses Morris, Mr. Lloyd Brooks, [illegible] and Mrs. Wheat, Palmer Wheat, [illegible] Eppinger, Miss Eppinger, Wm. Mountain and daughters, the Misses Failing, Miss [illegible] and others.

[illegible] ROW.—Notwithstanding the published [illegible] the capacity of the water works was in[illegible] supply the city with water for twenty-[illegible] succession, complaints do not cease. [illegible] been accustomed to bathe last be-[illegible] sprinkling lawns and sidewalks be-[illegible] who do not want to drink water [illegible] standing, are inconsolable. What [illegible] most is that the failure should [illegible] heated period Portland ever has. [illegible] consumers may feel like censuring [illegible] for not having provided for the coming [illegible] new works two months sooner, it [illegible] remembered that the matter now cannot [illegible] People who want it must provide an [illegible] supply of water in barrels, tubs, buckets [illegible] vessels. Many will feel aggrieved to [illegible] to pay for water and then can't have [illegible] command when most needed, but they [illegible] put on a good face and look pleasant. [illegible]

[illegible] FOR THE BLIND.—The regular [illegible] of the Oregon school for the blind [illegible] at Salem on Monday, September 8. [illegible] suitable for scholars will be re-[illegible] industrial department is organized for the [illegible] and tuition free. Those who are able [illegible] to furnish for their use towels, [illegible] and napkins, also sheets and pillow [illegible] extra articles of furniture as they [illegible] their rooms. Moor, [illegible] of the institution, requests papers [illegible] the state to copy the above.

BUILDINGS BURNED.—During the prevalence [illegible] wind last Saturday two of the build-[illegible] the Goodwin farm, on the Lacamas, were [illegible] fire. Some Chinamen were employed [illegible] of this city, the owner of the farm, [illegible] land near the buildings. They [illegible] some log heaps, when the wind spread [illegible] in spite of all exertions to prevent it [illegible] communicated to the house, and one of the [illegible] the dairy of the tenant on the place, all [illegible] destroyed. A barn next to the house [illegible] The losses amount to about $1500. [illegible] jumped to an adjoining farm and burned [illegible] acres of grain belonging to S. L. [illegible]

A COURT ADJOURNMENT.—The motion for a [illegible] in the case of the State of Oregon against [illegible] the hotel manager who has twice been [illegible] of larceny, was argued at some length in [illegible] circuit court yesterday morning. The ex-[illegible] due to the rulings of the court were set [illegible] by prisoner's counsel as reasons for their [illegible] new point, not even one of techni-[illegible] Judge Smith announced that he [illegible] the motion under advisement, and would postpone Howard's sentence another [illegible]

SUSPENDS SPRINKLING.—To add to the [illegible] the hot weather, the city sprinklers [illegible] suspend operations this week, because [illegible] not get water, and merchants along the [illegible] streets are abusing the city for having given [illegible] sprinkling business to the exclusion [illegible] contractors, who in former years gave satis-[illegible] last night the fire commissioners consented [illegible] an engine on one of the docks and let it fill [illegible] today.

UP ABOVE 100.—A thermometer hanging in [illegible] front of Brown & McCabe's office on [illegible] street marked 101 degrees at 4 o'clock [illegible] afternoon, and it wasn't a cheap thermometer. [illegible] A knot of men who gathered around it [illegible] much of the heat, but felt relieved when [illegible] came around the corner informed them [illegible] companion had held a lighted match under [illegible] a few minutes before.

[illegible] TO THE COAST.—Among the Lurline's [illegible] to-night will be eight members of the [illegible] club with their wheels. They will go over [illegible] beach, as fine a track as can be found in [illegible] and will form an attraction for the day. [illegible] are those who go: F. T. Merrill, C. H. RAISED A CHECK.—At the opening hour yesterday morning the Portland savings bank was notified that if a check signed by H. W. Price and H. A. Pierce for more than $65 was presented not to pay it. Shortly afterward a check for $665, payable to H. W. Price or bearer, was presented by an unknown man and payment was refused. It is a peculiar story. Price & Pierce is the name of a firm engaged in the carriage business in East Portland. They have a deposit with the savings bank, and an understanding that no draft is to be made thereon except upon checks signed individually by each member of the firm; not the firm's name. Of late the partners have not been altogether amicable, and Pierce says that Price a few days ago said it would be very easy to swindle him (Pierce) by raising checks. Thursday evening Price asked Pierce to sign a draft for $65, which he did. In the night, Pierce and his wife got to talking the matter over, and the remark of how easy it was to raise a check was remembered; hence the precaution of informing the bank at the earliest moment. Price did not make his appearance at the shop, and it is not known whether the check was raised by him or by the stranger who presented it.

MORE OF THE HACK DRIVERS' TROUBLES.—Yesterday Billy Anderson, driver of an express wagon was arrested for assaulting Robert Leonard, driver of the St. Lawrence coach. He was placed under bonds to appear Monday for trial. The case of Al Cody, charged with a similar offense at the same time and place, came up for hearing in Justice Bushwer's court. There was a good deal of swearing on both sides, and the court took the case under advisement. Leonard was asked by a reporter why he caused the arrest of a man smaller than himself, whom he ought to be able to whip easily, just because the man dared him to fight. Leonard answered that the crowd of U. C. & B. T. Co. drivers were "down on him" simply because he worked for a house that did not choose to come into the recent arrangement by which the carriage company tried to monopolize the transfer business. He says he was once attacked by the gang and nearly beaten to death, and that while he might defend himself against one or two men, he could not successfully cope with half a dozen. This is his story. The other side say that he jostled against Cody and Anderson and a great deal of "lip" was interchanged.

CHARGED WITH STEALING A WATCH.—Five men were arraigned in the police court yesterday upon the same charge of larceny, preferred by J. B. Kiernan, watchman for the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the yards near Greenwich dock. Kiernan's statement is that about 11 o'clock Thursday night he saw five tramps passing along among the cars and soon afterward he discovered that his watch and chain had been stolen from his vest which he had left lying in the cab of the engine. He reported the matter to policeman Flynn who found the five men stowed away in an old scow near the Albina ferry. When taken to the city jail they gave the names of Dan Riley, M. J. Kane, John Murray, James Davis and Charles Brown. A search of their persons, however, failed to reveal the stolen property. Owing to a press of other business in the police court the examination of these men was postponed until to day.

FINED $50 FOR STRIKING A WOMAN.—Fred Wagner driver of an express wagon, Sunday night passed an insulting remark in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Elkeles and Mrs. Isaacs, while they were walking on Front street. Mr. Elkeles took offense at the insult, and afterwards, when they passed near the American stable, was attacked by Wagner and had his nose broken, some of his teeth loosened and his eye bruised. While endeavoring to get Wagner away from her husband, Mrs. Elkeles was struck by Wagner. Yesterday he was tried by Justice Davis on a charge of assault and battery and fined $50. Assistant District Attorney Hewitt filed information against Wagner for the crime of mayhem. He waived examination and was bound over under bonds of $300 to appear before the grand jury.

VICTIM OF PICKPOCKETS.—Dave Ervin, who keeps a stall in the New Market, was relieved of his watch and chain Thursday night, while listening to the Wizard Oil concert at the corner of Fourth and Pine streets. He was there twenty minutes, and has not the least idea when the watch was stolen, but remembers two fleshy looking young fellows who crowded him very close, and thinks he could identify them if he should ever chance to see them again. Considering that pickpockets and thieves of all kinds infest this section at the present time, and that they must necessarily be very expert in order to thrive, Erwin can thank his stars they didn't take his coat and vest, too.

DIED FROM HIS INJURIES.—A young man named Hayden, a brakeman in the employ of the O. R. & N. Co., had the back of his leg crushed by being caught between bumpers, while engaged in coupling cars in the Albina yard, about two weeks ago. While the flesh was badly torn, his injuries were not regarded as specially dangerous. He was taken to the Key City hotel, in that place. Gangrene and blood poisoning set in and Hayden died about 6 o'clock last night. The body was taken charge of by A. P. De Lin, and will be kept by him until advices can be received from the young man's parents, who reside in or about San Francisco.

NON APPEARANCE OF THE TELEGRAM.—The Evening Telegram did not make its appearance last evening, owing to an unavoidable accident. Preparations were made at daylight yesterday to change the position of the engine which drives the press upon which the Telegram is printed. Everything went smoothly, though slow, and when four o'clock arrived it was thought connection would be made in an hour. An accident occurred, and it was then too late to have the large edition worked off on any other press in the city in time to deliver the paper before nine o'clock. The disappointment to subscribers is not so great as the regret of the publishers.

GETS A HABEAS CORPUS.—Mrs. Griffin, who was arrested the other day for running a laundry without a license, and who proposes to test the validity of the ordinance that requires her to pay such a license, is going at her defense in earnest. Though not in prison yet by virtue of bail deposited, she is still in custody of the chief of police. Therefore, through her attorneys, she yesterday procured a writ of habeas corpus, a copy of which was served on the chief of police, by virtue of which he is ordered to produce in the state circuit court at 2 P. M. to-day, the person of Mrs. Griffin, and show cause why she should not be released.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT.—A. Wohlis, the hack-driver who was so seriously beaten by policeman Bill Tennant, has caused the latter's arrest before Justice Davis, and a trial of the case will be held this morning. Judge Moreland's statement that Tennant certainly exceeded his duty will probably be supplemented by a more substantial reprimand in the shape of a fine, administered by Justice Davis. Nor should the matter rest here. Tennant is notoriously unfit for the position he holds under the city, and the mayor and council should see to it that he is removed.

FIRE IN ALBINA.—About 3 o'clock yesterday morning a frame building in Albina occupied by the Northern Pacific terminal company as a store room for oils and carpenter shop, caught fire and burned to the ground. The loss is from $3000 to $4000; not insured. It is supposed to have caught from a lighted cigar thrown down carelessly in the oil room, and the materials being combustible it acquired considerable headway before generally discovered. The fire was fortunately not in a quarter where other buildings were in danger.

AWFUL LONESOME.—The force of ship carpenters who went to Celilo and repaired the Northern Pacific transfer boat D. S. Billings, returned yesterday. They say Celilo is the only place in the civilized world containing fifty inhabitants where a man can't spend a cent. There is no saloon in the town, and what little liquor they drank was given them. As a supply of tobacco was laid in before the start, and as there was no railroad fare to pay, each one of the men came down with a nice little "stake." But they say it was awful lonesome.

BILL TENNANT'S CLUB.

A Case in the Police Court Shows How the Valiant Policeman Used It.

In the police court yesterday afternoon the case of Wohlis, a hack driver, charged with resisting an officer in the discharge of his duty came up for trial. Officer "Bill" Tennant made the complaint, which unfortunately for William, proved a boomerang that may knock him off the police force.

From the testimony of eye witnesses the following facts were developed: A few nights ago a young man about town and an old fellow from Salem, accompanied by two women, employed Wohlis to drive them about the city. They drove to Fifteenth and B streets and stopped at a saloon in that neighborhood for drinks. Tennant was standing at the door, on duty, and took a drink of brandy with the party. The hack then drove away, but came back in a few minutes, when the young man inside began to "chaff" the policeman. Tennant remarked that he had a very dull beat, and there would be no fun until "Mary Cooke comes down with her girls about 1 o'clock." He invited one of the women in the hack to come around then and take a drink. The girl replied that she did not associate with that class, whereupon Tennant made some remark reflecting upon her own standing in society.

At this the young fellow in the carriage became offended, and gave the policeman a bit of his mind. Tennant resorted to abusive language and threatened to arrest the youth, clinching his "argument" by grasping the alleged offender and attempting to drag him out, over the door of the open carriage. The driver grasped Bill by the arm, to prevent him from breaking the door of the hack, and was immediately knocked down by Tennant with his club, and, according to most of the witnesses, the wounded man was struck again while he was down.

He then put the youth in company of the hack into a street car, and took him to the police station, though the charge then preferred, drunk and disorderly, was afterwards withdrawn.

The hackman followed, and was also arrested, charged with resisting an officer.

Judge Moreland, in giving his decision, very severely censured Tennant for his action throughout the entire disgraceful affair. The Judge, in substance, said: "When the party asked you to drink with them you should have refused courteously, and then left and patroled your beat. It was a disgraceful thing for a police officer to stand in the open street and drink with such a crowd, much less to resort to abusive language. The party appears to have been quiet enough at first, and had you pursued the plan alluded to undoubtedly there would have been no trouble."

The Judge then ordered defendant discharged, as Officer Tennant was not in the discharge of his duty at the time of the interference.

Tennant will have a hearing to-day in Justice Davis' court on a charge of assaulting Wohlis.

NELL GWYNNE.

"Let not poor Nell starve," were the last words that fell from the expiring lips of Charles II. of England, addressed to the attendants who gathered about the royal couch. Even in the very throes of dissolution, after a life spent in profligacy and refined debauchery, this degenerate monarch of the house of Stuarts did not forget his protege, the unlawful sharer of his kingly favors and royal couch. This sympathy and kind solicitude for the future of Nell Gwynne, which perished only with his life can be recorded to the benefit of a sovereign who has conferred no honor on his own name and has only added a shadow to the bright lustre which illuminates the pages of English history. For the whole reign of this amiable, and, in many respects, brilliant, but purposeless and worthless of all the Stuarts, was but one saturnalia and protracted orgie of unbridled vice, licentiousness, meanness and social riot. His ambition was to be such a king as Louis XV., a monarch who could draw, without limit on the treasury for the gratification of his private tastes; who could hire with wealth and honors persons capable of assisting him to destroy time, and who, even when the state was reduced to the verge of ruin by maladministration, could still exclude unwelcome truth from the purlieus of his own seraglio, and refuse to see and hear whatever might disturb his luxurious repose.

Nell Gwynn, of English history, was born in London February 2, 1650, and died there in 1687, at the early age of 37. Born in a coal cellar, and reared in the lowest haunts of vice, and surrounded by vicious, degraded associates, her subsequent life of folly and gilded vice seems but a natural sequence. From such obscure origin and debasing associations, no pure and exalted type of womanhood could be expected to develop and blossom in the atmosphere of a corrupt and venal court. Almost from her infancy, Nell Gwynn discovered great precocity. She was bright, pretty and vivacious. Vending oranges and fruits constituted her earliest employment. In this capacity she strolled from tavern to tavern offering her meager stock for sale, and singing her songs to the crowds of revelers who congregated there. As she ripened into early womanhood she became beautiful, gay and yielding. Before reaching her eighteenth year, she became successively the favorite of Hart and Lacy, two noted actors of those times. Then she went upon the stage and became one of the most popular actresses of the day. She possessed no talent whatever for tragedy, but was very clever in light, humorous parts, particularly where dancing and singing were introduced. History affirms she was Lord Buckhurst's favorite for a time—until he was induced by the offer of a political reward to surrender her to Charles II. Nell Gwynne however, remained in the dramatic profession until 1671, notwithstanding her intimacy with royalty. She remained the publicly-acknowledged mistress of Charles until the latter's death. Her lavish prodigality is said to have cost her royal master over $300,000. Chief among her vices were frailty and profanity. She was merry, open hearted and generous to profusion, and in her prosperity, never forgot her old friends of the theatrical profession. At her instigation Charles erected Chelsea hospital for old and disabled soldiers. Both at court and with the people she was extremely popular. Of all Charles' royal favorites, Nell Gwynne remained faithful to him; and is the only one who has won sympathy or forgiveness from posterity. In vindication of her memory, history, with its impartial hand, has recorded that from the death of Charles, until her own, Nell Gwynne led a virtuous and circumspect life, and by her many deeds of gentle mercy has softened the harsher phases of a life devoted in part to folly and social dissipation. Her memory is still kindly cherished by the world, and her frailties forgotten in the charitable oblivion of the grave.

Messrs. Reede and Taylor's bright and sparkling drama, in four acts, entitled "Nell Gwynne, or the Life of an Actress," was rendered last evening. Miss Thompson appeared in the title role. All the more objectionable features were expurgated. Only those traits of character showing the native impulses of what was kind and ennobling in the nature of the poor actress were brought prominently in view during the course of the drama. Blessed with a free and buoyant disposition, her chief mission in life was to render all about her happy. Gay to recklessness, and overflowing with life and spirit, she fluttered about the tainted air of Charles' court like a beautiful butterfly, dispelling gloom on all sides. Miss Thompson in the sunny and vivacious character of the court actress appeared to admirable advantage. As the light spirited, rollicking Nell Gwynne, she seemed in her most winning and brilliant vein. Through all its frivolities of speech and action she gave frequent glimpses of deep shadows of character, of a true woman's heart and of a love for, and devoted loyalty to that which is good and noble in human nature. That which was generous and pure shone clearly in that scene with the Duke of Richmond when by woman's tact and diplomacy she effected a reconciliation between the fiery nobleman and Frances Stuart, the mistress of his heart. Miss Adams played the character of Frances Stuart with her usual care and conscientious regard to details, and invested the character with true womanly feeling. Mr. Craig assumed the role of the brave but hot-headed and impetuous Duke of Richmond. There was not lacking that measure of cavalry dash and esprit so indispensable to the part. Some of his impetuous speeches were roundly applauded. Mr. Y[illegible] as the ardent devotee at the shrine of "wine and women"—the merry Charles—was clever and engaging. W. T. Doyle made a very acceptable Lord Buckhurst, J. L. Wooderson gave a good rendition of Samuel Peppys—the fellow who kept a diary. Little Silver Miller, cut quite an attractive figure as page to the king. Dressed in her little court "togs," she looked a doll, and acted with cunning archness. The remainder of the cast sustained their respective parts acceptably. From rise to fall of curtain the piece ran smoothly.

"Nell Gwynne" will be repeated to-night.

At matinee this afternoon, "Jane Eyre" will be presented.

COOK'S MUSIC PARLORS.

These are at the corner of Washington and Second streets, and are fitted up in neat taste and in a manner appropriate to the place and purposes of the rooms. The writer had occasion to visit these rooms a few days since and was most particularly charmed with the musical precocity and surprising genius and ability displayed by a bright 11-year-old daughter of the professor. She executed some of the most difficult music on the piano with an ease, grace, accuracy and expression that was truly astonishing. Prof. Cook declares that Miss May has an extraordinary genius besides a willingness to apply herself and readiness to do hard and continuous work. But the writer is of opinion that the young lady possesses special talents and has enjoyed the careful training of a most competent and conscientious teacher. Certainly the lady will create a sensation whenever Prof. Cook shall permit her to perform in public.—Telegram.

THE EAST SIDE.

THE DEMAND FOR ADDITIONAL POLICE.

It appears somewhat strange that the petition asking a reconsideration of the action whereby the police force was reduced, and the reinstatement of R. Stafford should have met with such apparent scorn at the last regular meeting of the common council, considering the number of business houses and amount of property represented on the petition. The action may be excusable from the fact that the signatures were not read in connection with the petition, and as one member referred to it derisively as emanating from men who refused to pay their taxes, this may have been the case, or else a great injustice was done to the bulk of the signers. The desire for another policeman is general, and the petition was signed, with one or two exceptions, by the entire business community and many of our heaviest taxpayers. The following list, numbering ninety, are the subscribers whom the council had the presumption to sit down upon: John H Carse, J H Hall, E W Burdin, J M Stott, E D Thorn, C D Pittney, J C Nipporch, R P Campbell, Geo Straube, E L Foss, Martin Riley, D L Leathers, W F Crellin, D D Neer, P Flynn, S M Keegan, L and D Larsen, S Bullock, Leo Strauss, W R Welch, W P Cameron, Wm Dalton, Kirk Sheldon, E C Brigham, Jos Buchtel, Walter Jones, T J Matlock, A H Logan, A H Heyman, R Tompkins, H A Eiseking, Chas Hird, Jas Loose, Samuel Finser, John W Collins, W W Mcintyre, John DeBorst, John Harrison, J J Hall, H Stone, John Sommerville, John Finn, F H Bowman, Frank Payne, Goldsmith & Cooper, W A McGrath, L Bache, H Schmidt, H C Hill, C Barrell, Jr, F J Lent, Jas Burkhead, Lane & Davis, J P Parker, W G Perryman, F Bode, R O Garbaek, Wm Underhill, F S Dunning, A McEwen, R L Gillespie, H A Hogue, J H Everest, W G Everest, A Renton, W G Register, B G Cole, O E Adams, C A Gardner, J Y Arn, C J Ward, L C Hunt, C W Carr, N McIntosh, L A Patterson, J J Kadderly, C H Raffety, Wilson & Reardon, C E Nottage, Thomas Welch, McCormick Bros, W H Moore, C W Tracy, B Holmes, George A Bick, W T Burney, E O Dunn, S E Joseph, P L Jones, R F Boston & Co.

It would seem that the professed economical scruples of the council would not be impaired by authorizing an expenditure of $75 per month for the purpose stated, when such action would receive the substantial endorsement as indicated above.

COATS ARRESTED.

William Coats, the man who caused the disturbance and shot off in East Portland the other night, was arrested yesterday by Constable Thorn on a warrant issued from Justice Coleman's court, charging him with assault and battery on David Sears. Sears is the man who was in company with his wife and sister and who aroused the green-eyed monster which led to the alleged assault. James Loftus, for whom he is working, deposited $25 for his appearance next Tuesday.

DIED FROM HIS INJURIES.

The young man who fell from the J street bridge in East Portland night before last died from his injuries at St. Vincent's hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The immediate cause of his death was concussion of the brain. No further particulars can be learned respecting him than those published yesterday. The young man who claimed to be his brother came over and importuned the city authorities in the morning for relief on his behalf, but after the victim's death could not be found.

THE DALLES, Aug. 8.

Mrs. W. Lair Hill started for Seattle this morning.

Dr. H. L. Waters is much better, but not able to attend to his patients.

Two camping parties, one for Mount Hood and the other for Trout lake and Mount Adams, started from this place this week.

Messrs. Handley & Sinnott are hauling the stone for the foundation of a new block on Second street, next east of Schanno's new block. A large hall or opera house is contemplated for the second story of the new building.

Mr. L. D. Frank, who has been ill for a week with pneumonia, died Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock. Though it was generally known he was seriously ill, his death was unexpected. He was one of the best known business men of the city, a man universally respected and one who will be greatly missed in business circles. His funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the Masons, of which order he was an active member.

A GRAND THRESHER VICTORY.

The New Massillon to the rescue, and does the thing up brown. Read what the honest yeomen of Salem Prairie have to say, and buy Russell & Co.'s New Massillon, which does good and honest work.

SALEM PRAIRIE, Or., Aug. 7, 1884.

Mr. T. B. Wall, Salem, Or.—Dear Sir: We, the undersigned, have this day seen the Russell & Co. New Massillon Thresher run in the field of Martin Bros., and pronounce it the best we have ever seen; it never detained us a moment from the start. It does its work WELL in long, heavy straw, where the J. I. Case failed, and was drawn out.

Waitsburg has ordered a hand engine for fire purposes.

There are now ten candidates for sheriff before the conventions in Whitman county.

Judge Turner, the newly appointed associate justice of the supreme court, will reside at Yakima.

Many Clarke county farmers have finished haying and are now deep in the harvest. The grain yield will be better than that of 1883.

Walla Walla Journal: The number of unemployed men in town is fifty to seventy-five. The force is decreasing daily, and Marshal Robinson says that four-fifths of them are worthy and hard-working.

A man has arrived in town, says the Spokane Falls Review, from Sand Point with two bullet holes through his thigh. He stated to Marshal Hyde that he had been shot at Sand Point by a railroad man, but no cause was assigned for the shooting.

Eastern Oregon.

A band of horse thieves, with about twenty five head of horses, has recently gone from the vicinity of Pendleton toward California. They were followed as far as Prineville, but could not be caught.

On Monday, says the Prineville News, a misunderstanding, which had existed between M. N. Gird and Adrian Comley, came to a termination—at least for the time being—by the two gentlemen shooting it out in the street. Comley was armed with a S. & W. 38 single action pistol, and Gird with a larger pistol. Comley fired three shots and Gird three or four. No bullets took the desired effect. Both men were arrested, and upon examination Comley was released, and Gird held under $500 bonds. The bond was given and Gird is now at liberty.

Western Oregon.

From the Reporter it is learned that the lightning struck in the field of Asa Shadden, near McMinnville, on Tuesday evening, and burned several shocks of grain.

There is considerable rust on the late grain on the lowlands in the vicinity of Lafayette, but it is thought, from the fact that it is mostly on the blades, it will not do any great damage.

Corvallis Gazette: Harvesting began in earnest last Monday morning, and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather of the first part of the week many early crops in this county have been garnered. The yield so far as reported is most flattering, being from 25 to 35 bushels per acre.

Little Rock Gardner, a six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gardner, was drowned in the river at Lafayette on Thursday evening, about five o'clock. It seems he was fishing near Captain Powell's warehouse, and accidentally slipped in. A party of little girls who were playing near by gave the alarm, and Captain Powell, assisted by another gentleman, succeeded in finding his body after a few minutes' search. Dr. Frank was hastily summoned, but every effort to resuscitate him was unavailing.

A Corvallis exchange says: A few nights ago a dastardly attempt to burn the West Side train was made at this place. George Avery, who was attending a sick child, noticed a bright light at the depot, and on rushing to the place found the wood in the tender on fire in two places. The fire had not as yet made much headway, and consequently was easily extinguished with but little damage. A few minutes' delay, however, would have been too late, as the fire had burned through one end of a tool box which contained a considerable amount of oil and tallow, and as the wood was perfectly dry and a brisk wind was blowing at the time, and in a very short time the flames would have been beyond control.

A London paper, in its account of the meet of the Coaching club, says the earl and countess of Shrewsbury were conspicuous by having no guests on their coach, and they did not join the gay procession that wended its way to Hurlingham afterward. It will be remembered that Lord S. eloped with Mrs. Mundy, nee Morewood. What, however, has tended most of all to put England's premier earl out of society has been his heartless conduct to his mother. It is said that on this account the prince of Wales cut him dead.

THE BRITISH ON BLAINE.

The Republican Nominee Objected to as "An American Beaconsfield."

The following is the full text of the article in the London Pall Mall Gazette on the nomination of Blaine:

"It is a bitter satire upon the belated nonsense of "G.'s" article in the Fortnightly Review that the republican convention at Chicago should yesterday have nominated for the American presidency the greatest Jingo of the western world. At a time when Englishmen are exhorted to follow the American example and dispense with foreign affairs the dominant party in the United States selects as its candidate for the presidency the one statesman who is pledged up to the hilt to a forward policy. He may not have been chosen because of his foreign policy, but it is significant that the great caucus passed a resolution in favor of increasing the navy, nor did it regard his aggressive imperialism as any objection to his nomination. The vote yesterday, therefore, we take to be a much more notable event, so far as the British empire is concerned, than anything that has happened on the other side of the Atlantic since President Lincoln was assassinated.

It does not matter to us whether Mr. Blaine, who in home politics is the Chamberlain of the party machine as in foreign policy he is the Beaconsfield of the states is or is not guilty of the numerous jobs of which he is accused by his rivals. If a hands may or may not be clean—that is a matter for Americans. But his views as to the destiny and duty of the United States in the western world concern us nearly. We own nearly one half of the northern continent; we do an immense trade with South America; our treaty obligations in Central America are considerable; and the intervening seas are sprinkled with British possessions. On Mr. Blaine's theory of the universe all this is wrong. The old world has no business in the new. Of course he does not propose to drive us out at the point of the bayonet. He is not a lunatic, but a very able and shrewd Yankee. But wherever he can he will oust us from the position which we hold; whenever an opportunity offers he will use it to the uttermost to replace our influence and our trade by the influence and the trade of the United States, and he will regard it as his chief object to promote a great American confederacy under the aegis of the government at Washington, which would tend to increase the export trade of the United States at the expense of that of Great Britain. This is no mere inference from his acts. It is avowed almost in so many words in an article which he published two years ago in a Chicago magazine and it is confirmed by every dispatch which he wrote during his short tenure of office under Gen. Garfield. The grandiose project of the peace congress, at which representatives from all the American states, south and north, were to assemble at Washington, was one significant hint as to the direction in which his mind was moving. The abrupt and almost menacing fashion in which he intimated to the English government his disregard for the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was of evil augury for the future relations of the two countries. He lost no opportunity of interfering in Central American disputes, and there were even stories afloat that he was ready to set up a protectorate over some of the largest West Indian islands. But by far the most ominous symptoms of his tendencies was his intervention in Peru, and the grounds on which he defended it. He sent General Hurlbut to intervene in order to save Peru from destruction, expressly because he held it to be the duty of the States to keep Peruvian business out of England's hands. "I especially dislike," he said, "to see England winning great commercial triumphs in a field that legitimately belongs to the United States." Chili's triumph, he thought, was England's victory. American interests demanded intervention to save Peru from "the absolute domination of English influence," and although he declared that he only meant to use "steady moral pressure," his successor promptly reversed his policy on the express ground that it involved the alternative of war.

This being so, we shall do well to watch with extreme solicitude the course of the campaign. That Mr. Blaine's views should not have stood in the way of his nomination is very significant. Speaking some weeks before the convention met, Senator Ingalls expressed himself in this remarkable fashion concerning the political tendency of the west:

"The people at large very little know what a tremendous undercurrent of thought, involving grand ideas, is moving with irresistible force throughout the whole length and breadth of the west. One of these elements of public thought in this great region is the unification of the continent. Under this American idea the northern boundary will be the Polar sea, and the southern the Interoceanic canal. The ratification of the Mexican treaty was supported by western senators under the inspiration of this grand idea. The treaty is the first step to the annexation of that country. . . . I might say the American idea is hemispherical rather than continental. . . . To fairly represent the western idea of American destiny, we need a president who is aggressive and comprehensive, not provincial in his scope. . . . I think Blaine comes nearer the ideal party leader than any one I can think of in our politics to-day; but there is such a thing as being too aggressive."

And yet Mr. Blaine, who was too aggressive for this senator who calmly contemplated annexations down to Panama, is today the selected candidate of the republican party for the presidency of the United States.

PORTLAND PHONOGRAPHIC INSTITUTE.
ESTABLISHED FEBRUARY 1, 1883 (Reed Block).

THE THIRD TERM OF THIS INSTITUTE WILL OPEN ON AUGUST 14, 1884, AT THE USUAL HOUR, 7:30 P. M. Those who desire to master this valuable art will do well to secure a seat at McKercher & Thompson's Bookstore, at an early day, as the number is limited. The fact that a good phonographer can write six times faster than an expert penman, and at the same time as accurately, is conclusive proof of a great merit, the vaporings of antiquated professors and others who are ignorant of the art to the contrary notwithstanding.

A STORMY SESSION OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONGRESS

VERSAILLES, Aug 8.—The congress of the two houses of parliament to-day continued discussion of the committee's report on the bill for revision of the constitution. Further scenes of a disorderly character occurred. Dauphin was obliged to leave the tribune. The discussion was declared closed and a show of hands called for. At this point the tumult increased. Jollbois ascended the tribune and attempted to make a speech, but was prevented by the president. The uproar was renewed and members vacated their seats and formed a semi circle on the floor of the house, amid intense excitement. The president was compelled to suspend the sitting. The congress afterward resumed its session and commenced discussion of the articles of the revision bill. Barodet's amendment to force revoking of the constitutional assembly was rejected 483 to 199. Thereupon Barodet and six of his partisans quitted the session after reading a protest against the [illegible] of the congress. The sitting adjourned without transacting any other business.

"I wish I was a bolt," he said. "Why?" she asked. "Then I could always be around you." "I wish you were an anchor," she remarked. "Why?" he asked. "Then you'd go weigh," she answered.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Brook trout sometimes show great patience and curiosity. They have been known to watch a fisherman all day to see what he will finally do with the grasshopper he is bobbing up and down on the end of a string.—New Orleans Picayune.

The story of the little girl who was warned by her mother to say nothing regarding the nose of a gentleman who was to dine with them and who electrified the guests after all were seated, by exclaiming "Why mamma, I don't see why you told me not to say anything about Mr Jenkins' nose—he hasn't got any!" has found a companion piece in another exhibition of the letter rather than the spirit which lately occurred in Brooklyn. Mrs Smith had invited some friends to spend the evening at her house and before the guests arrived she told her little son, Johnny, that Mr Brown, one of the gentlemen expected, was so unfortunate as to have a club foot, about which she wished to caution the child to make no disagreeable remarks. Some time after Mr Brown had entered the parlor, Johnny approached the chair on which he was seated and curiously surveyed his unfortunate limb, after which he exclaimed in a tone of interest: "Why, what a pretty foot!"

While admonishing a number of children who had just been confirmed recently, Archbishop Gibbons told the story of a little boy in East Baltimore who was lost a month or two ago, and was taken to the station house for the night. "After he was put to bed," said the archbishop, "he called the officers back and said he had forgotten to say his prayers, and in their presence the little fellow bravely knelt down and recited 'Our Father,' which was perhaps the first sermon any of them had heard in a long time; certainly it was the best."

There were thirty-two pupils in the colored school at Strongstown, Texas, when it was struck by lightning and demolished. None were killed, although several were injured by the falling timbers.

CHARACTER AND CANDIDATES.

Interesting Aspects of the Case When the Other Fellow's Ox Is Gored.

Boston Journal

Something like a sea-change has come over the independent journals. They have relaxed their strenuous insistence upon the argument that character is the great issue of the campaign and the only issue, [illegible] mentioning, and have begun to affirm gravely that personal character is of no account anyway and that it is a shame to discuss it. Any one who should take the pains to collect these currents of independent expression would find among them some curiosities of reason and ethics. One journal takes comfort in the fact that there have been [illegible] in the past whose lives were not what they ought to be. Another argues, in substance, that a man has two characters, one private and the other public, and that it makes no difference what the former may be if the latter be good. But perhaps the most curious position of all is that taken by that very eminent [illegible] of the public morals, the Springfield Republican. The Republican says:

"We accept [illegible] as a truth that the chastity or unchastity of public men of national reputation and nominated for office before the people of the whole country is not a proper subject for discussion. The rule may be different in regard to a petty neighborhood canvass, where those who pass upon the qualifications of local officers know something of his private life, but the 50,000,000 of people cannot attain intimacy with all the social life and family affairs of their candidates for president, and it is [illegible] that they should."

The reader will observe what this argument proves. If a man is a candidate for selectman or for school committee or enters in any other way into a petty neighborhood canvass, it is proper to examine his personal character and private life. But if he is a candidate for the presidency of the United States mum is the word! We beg leave to differ with the Republican. The more exalted the office the closer should be the scrutiny of the character of the man aspiring to it. It would be a bad thing and a scandal to elect a betrayer of women and a man of corrupt morals to the office of selectman or school committee, but the injury done thereby would be trifling and circumscribed. To elect a man of that type president of the United States would be a far more serious thing. It would be a national scandal and disgrace.

The sophistries of the Republican will deceive no one, not even the correspondent to whom it is struggling to explain why it has opened its columns freely to every aspersion against Mr Blaine and closed them to the charges against Mr Cleveland. The people have a right to know what kind of a man they are invited to vote for for president. Especially in the case of a man like Mr Cleveland, whose public record has been brief and wholly removed from national questions, it is important to know something of his personal character in making up an estimate of his fitness for the office to which he aspires. The friends of Mr Cleveland, in attempting to exclude every issue save that of character, have invited the very scrutiny which they now deprecate. They should accept the results with better grace, or at least should meet them with better arguments. The sense of honor is not quite dead among the American people. If the charges against Governor Cleveland are not disproved they will be the determining point upon which thousands of ballots will turn. If there is any contradiction or explanation which can be made in behalf of Governor Cleveland, the sooner it is made the better. But if there is none the independent journals would do Mr Cleveland a kindness to keep still. To endeavor to get him out of his trouble by representing it as a very trifling and commonplace affair is to outrage the moral sense of the people.

CANDIDATES MUST BE PURE

Albany Evening Journal

It is amazing that such a conservative and discreet newspaper as the Springfield Republican dare say to its constituency that the scandals concerning Governor Cleveland's private life, if proven, would not destroy his usefulness either as a candidate for office or as an elected official. It makes what we consider in this Christian day the monstrous assertion that [illegible] for the ministry purity of personal conduct is the first point on which stress is required, but when a man is sought for high political station to stand [illegible] which shall play [illegible] the light of ambition and greed, the first qualifications sought are firmness [illegible] dealing with men, courage and discernment, integrity [illegible].

We say [illegible] assertion and it is [illegible] should be firm [illegible] dealing with himself [illegible] do that he cannot possess the firm [illegible] with [illegible] the Republican [illegible] essentials. We hold further that a candidate whose private life is impure cannot have the desirable qualifications [illegible] integrity [illegible] the Republican [illegible] to talk [illegible] discerning [illegible].

We do not mean charges against any man, nor are we [illegible] against Governor Cleveland. We are not [illegible] in the abstract. The Journal [illegible] that every man who pr[illegible] every man who honors his daughter [illegible] every true woman who [illegible] the Republican can [illegible].

The Journal believes that a man whose brutal passions must be an [illegible] another character [illegible] not be trusted [illegible] honors of public life. A man unworthy of private respect is unworthy of public honor.

All the presidential nominees have biblical names. The republican nominates James and John, the democrats Stephen and [illegible], the prohibitionists St John and Daniel, the greenbackers Benjamin and [illegible]. It is [illegible] that Bob Ingersoll will not vote this year.—[illegible] Journal

Surface Indications

What a miner would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pimples, Sties, Sore Eyes, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions with which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effete matter accumulated during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through Nature's endeavors to expel it from the system. While it remains it is a poison that festers in the blood and may develop into Scrofula. This condition causes derangement of the digestive and assimilatory organs, with a feeling of enervation, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as only spring fever. These are evidences that Nature is not able, unaided, to throw off the corrupt atoms which weaken the vital forces. To regain health Nature must be aided by a thorough blood purifying medicine, and nothing else is so effective as which is sufficiently powerful to expel from the system even the taint of Hereditary Scrofula.

The medical profession indorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it come from all parts of the world. It is, in the language of the Hon. Francis Jewett, ex-State Senator of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1, six bottles for $5.
